

Oil and Gas Businesses in North America

Leading United States oil and gas companies based on market capitalization

This statistic shows the United States' top ten oil and gas producing companies based on market capitalization as of April 2020.

The values are based on the 2020 Financial Times Equity list of the leading global companies. As of April 2020, United States-based oil and gas company Chevron reached a market capitalization of some 152 billion U.S. dollars.

Ranking of United States oil and gas service, equipment, and distribution providers based on market capitalization

Enterprise Products Partners was the leading provider of oil and gas service, equipment, and distribution in the United States, based on a market capitalization of 64.12 billion U.S. dollars in 2019.

Midstream oil operations include processing, storing, transporting, and marketing petroleum products. There are three major stages in the oil industry operations including upstream, midstream, and downstream which refer to different points along the operations process.